

Tips for Natural & Candid Photos by Queenstown Engagement Photographer

Have you ever thought about having a photoshoot in Queenstown, New Zealand's adventure capital, but are you afraid of looking stiff or awkward? That feeling is completely normal. Many couples dislike the idea of posing stiffly and the forced smiles. That is why having a local Queenstown engagement photographer would be a great solution to get you out of the uncomfortable situation. They are usually experts in capturing natural moments, and you would just find their work a breath of fresh air.

Here is the secret that you would never miss in your lifetime, explained in a simple and understandable way!

Focus on Each Other Instead of the Camera:

- The simplest way to capture authentic photographs is to make cameras just background tools, or even forget them.
- Don't look your partner through the lens; look your love in the face, and get as personal as holding their hand, sharing a little secret you two know, or just having a moment of silent appreciation, looking out together at Lake Wakatipu with love.

Keep Moving:

- The habit of standing still with a stiff pose will probably stiffen your shoulders besides generating a posed, almost false smile.
- Being in motion is the ultimate way of erasing all the awkward feelings of having a photo shoot. Your Queenstown engagement photographer is quite probably going to suggest activities to you rather than forcing you into standard poses.
- You can walk together along a lakefront, which can be a bit rocky, dance in a field of golden tussock, or run down a mountain trail.

Wear What Makes You Feel Amazing:

- If you are constantly pulling at a tight dress or adjusting an uncomfortable collar, it will be apparent in your photos.
- Pick a look that fits the tough yet breathtaking Queenstown style as well as one that allows you the flexibility to be comfortable in a place.
- Being dressed up comfortably and yet looking fabulous means that a person will naturally take the pose as if she just woke up to a camera.

Conclusion:

In the end, your engagement photos should be your visual love story celebration. By emphasizing movement and focusing more on your partner, and entrusting your Luxury Queenstown engagement photographer with all aspects of photography, you will end up with a collection of happy and genuine photographs that reflect your essence exactly.
